

Earl Williams

One In Three Million

Drivers like Earl Williams don't come around very often. They are one in a million or one in three million, as is the case with Earl. He recently reached a trucking milestone that few will see – three million safe miles.

The Bardwell, S.C., native had wanted to be a driver as long as he could remember.

Twenty-three years ago, when he began his trucking career, he chose Boyd because he wanted to drive flatbed. We're beyond thankful that Earl picked Boyd all those years ago and has built a memorable career with us. He truly sets the bar high.

"Earl Williams is the perfect example of professional driver," comments his fleet manager, Jeff Nathan. "You know that every load he is on will be delivered safely and in a timely manner. He gets the job done. It's that simple. If I could clone him, I would have a team of 600 drivers that would set the standard for all other drivers."

Earl now drives a dedicated route for Boyd and is quick to deflect the attention from himself, giving credit to his family and the Boyd team. "It feels great! This is a milestone that's not easy to reach and my family is very proud of me," Earl said. "You can't do something like this without a company and dispatcher that is patient and communicates well with you while you're on the road."

We couldn't agree more, Earl. Congratulations on this outstanding milestone and we look forward to another million safe miles.
